STATEMENT OF INTEREST OF *AMICUS CURIAE*¹

The Texas Public Policy Foundation (the “Foundation”) is a non-profit, non-partisan research organization dedicated to promoting liberty, personal responsibility, and free enterprise through academically-sound research and outreach.

Since its inception in 1989, the Foundation has emphasized the importance of limited government, free market competition, private property rights, and freedom from regulation. In accordance with its central mission, the Foundation has hosted policy discussions, authored research, presented legislative testimony, and drafted model ordinances to reduce the burden of government on Texans. Historically, the Foundation has worked on policymaking through its Center for Local Governance related to the constitutional limitation on local government ordinances by requiring such laws to be in conformity with the state statute or rule on the same subject.

It is with this background and experience that the Foundation submits this Brief supporting Review so that this Court may affirm the opinion of the Texas Fourth Court of Appeals.

The Foundation has paid all of the costs and fees incurred in the preparation of this brief.

¹ The Parties are unopposed to the Foundation’s filing of this amicus brief. No counsel for any party authored this brief in whole or in part, and no party or counsel for any party made a monetary contribution intended to fund the preparation or submission of this brief.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The Texas Supreme Court should grant review to this case, and affirm the Fourth Court of Appeals' Opinion in order to encourage Texas courts to strike down city ordinances that conflict with Texas law. State law prohibits restrictions on the use of containers or packages. Nevertheless, cities throughout Texas are directly contradicting state law through ordinances that prohibit retailers from providing customers with single-use plastic bags. Laredo's ordinance is a representative example. Local governments are defined and checked by the state—cities cannot regulate in areas where the Legislature has expressly and definitively removed city authority. The rule of law requires courts to enforce objective, black-letter restrictions against local governments when they exceed their scope of authority. Accordingly, the Court should grant review to encourage lower courts to strike down these misguided city ordinances.

ARGUMENT

I. THE TEXAS SUPREME COURT SHOULD GRANT REVIEW AND AFFIRM THE FOURTH COURT OF APPEALS' DECISION IN ORDER TO PROVIDE GUIDANCE TO LOWER COURTS.

A. The Fourth Court of Appeals Correctly Decided That Laredo's Ordinance Exceeds the Scope of Its Authority.

The Fourth Court of Appeals correctly held that Laredo's ordinance is inconsistent with Texas Health & Safety Code §361.0961(a). Laredo Merchants Ass'n v. City of Laredo, No. 04-15-00610-CV, 2016 WL 4376627 (Tex. App. Aug.

17, 2016). First, the Fourth Court of Appeals held that a single-use plastic bag is “container” or “package” under state law. Id. at *6. (“We conclude a “checkout bag” as defined by the Ordinance is a type of “container” or “package” as those terms are used in section 361.0961 of the Act.”). Second, the Fourth Court of Appeals disagreed with Laredo’s argument that its ordinance was not for solid waste management purposes. Id. at *7. (“The Ordinance does exactly what the Act intends to prevent—regulate the sale or use of plastic bags for solid waste management purposes.”). The Texas Supreme Court should grant review to affirm the Fourth Court of Appeals’ reasoning that a single-use plastic bag is a “container” or “package” under Texas Health & Safety Code § 361.0961(a), and that the actual effect of ordinances restricting plastic bags is solid waste management.

Texas law prohibits local governments from restricting the use of specific types of bags, including single-use plastic bags.

A local government or other political subdivision may not adopt an ordinance, rule, or regulation to prohibit or restrict, for solid waste management purposes, the sale or use of a container or package in a manner not authorized by state law.

Texas Health and Safety Code § 361.0961(a)(1).

In 2014, the Texas Attorney General opined:

[S]ection 361.0961 would likely prohibit a city ordinance adopted for solid waste management purposes that prohibited single-use plastic bags.

Tex. Atty. Gen. Op. FA-1078, Aug. 29, 2014, at 4.

Nevertheless, Laredo passed an ordinance prohibiting the provision of single-use plastic bags in 2015:

“It shall be unlawful for any commercial establishment to provide checkout bags to customers except as outlined by this article.”

Laredo, Tex., Code of Ordinances ch. 33, art. VIII, § 33-505 (2015).

Laredo claimed its ordinance did not violate Texas law because a plastic bag is not a “container” or “package” under Texas Health & Safety Code § 361.0961(a). The Fourth Court of Appeals disagreed, relying on a plain and ordinary meaning of the word, since the terms “container” and “package” are undefined in the state statute. Laredo Merch. Ass'n v. City of Laredo, at *6. (“The plain language of section 361.0961 or the Act does not limit the terms “containers” or “packages” to closed vessels or wrappings as the City contends.”).

Further, Laredo claimed its ordinance did not violate Texas law because it was intended for “beautification” purposes rather than “solid waste management.” However, Laredo’s ordinance reveals that the desired “beautification” is achieved through solid waste management. Accordingly, Laredo’s ordinance is intended:

- (a) To promote the beautification of the city through prevention of litter generated from discarded checkout bags.

- (b) To reduce costs associated with floatable trash controls and the maintenance of the municipal separate stormwater sewer system.
- (c) To protect life and property from flooding that is a consequence of improper stormwater drainage attributed in part to obstruction by litter from checkout bags.

Laredo, Tex., Code of Ordinances ch. 33, art. VIII, § 33-501 (2015) (emphasis added).

Again, the Fourth Court of Appeals rejected Laredo's argument that litter prevention was not solid waste management. It held that, despite Laredo's protestations, the actual effect of prohibition on the sale of plastic bags was solid waste management, in violation of Texas Health & Safety Code § 361.0961(a). (Laredo Merch. Ass'n v. City of Laredo, at 7). ("Here, the actual effect of the Ordinance is to manage solid waste by regulating litter produced from discarded checkout bags.").

In accordance with the above, the Texas Supreme Court should grant review and affirm the decision of the Fourth Court of Appeals. In particular, the Court should adopt the Fourth Court of Appeals' correct reasoning that Laredo's ordinance exceeds the scope of its authority, because its restrictions on single-use plastic bags conflicts with Texas Health & Safety Code §361.0961(a)(1). Doing so is particularly important because cities across Texas have adopted similar ordinances.

B. Laredo's Ordinance Is Representative of Other Cities' Ordinances That Exceed Their Scope of Authority.

Other Texas cities have enacted ordinances prohibiting the sale of plastic bags similar to Laredo.² For example, Austin's ordinance states:

Beginning March 1, 2013, a business establishment within the City limits may not provide single-use carryout bags to its customers or to any person.

Austin, Tex., Code of Ordinances ch. 15-6, art. VI, § 15-6-122 (2012). Austin enacted its ordinance to reduce the city's overall impact on the environment, particularly in its solid waste stream. Austin, Tex., Ordinance No. 20120301-078 (2012) ("The successful reduction of single use carryout bags entering the City's solid waste stream, along with the integration of reusable bags and composting, will help the city achieve its goal of "Zero Waste" by the year 2040.").

Similarly, Brownsville's ordinance states:

² See, e.g., Corpus Christi, Tex., Code of Ordinances chp. 22, § 22-10 (2014) ("Beginning twelve (12) months from the date this chapter takes effect, no person may provide plastic checkout bags at any city facility, city-sponsored event, or any event held on city property."); Freer, Tex., Ordinance No. 2012-05 (2012) ("Affected retail establishments are prohibited from providing Plastic Carry-out bags to their customers at the point of sale."); Fort Stockton, Tex., Code of Ordinances chp. 12, art. I, § 12-9 (2010) ("Businesses will be prohibited from providing plastic shopping bags beginning September 1, 2011, with the exception of plastic shopping bags specifically provided to the customer at the point of sale for the purpose of transporting meat, fish and poultry products. Businesses may instead provide only recyclable paper bags, reusable bags or biodegradable bags as checkout bags to their customers with or without charge."); Kermit, Tex., Code of Ordinances chp. 98 (2013) ("No store shall provide to any customer a plastic carryout bag."); Laguna Vista, Tex., Ordinance No. 2012-23 (2012) ("Affected retail establishments are prohibiting [sic] from providing plastic carry-out bags to their customers at the point of sale."); South Padre Island, Tex., Ordinance No. 10-38 (2011) ("Affected retail establishments are prohibited from providing Plastic Carry-out Bags to their customers at the point of sale."); Sunset Valley, Tex., Code of Ordinances chp. 93, § 93-61 (Beginning September 1, 2013 a business establishment within the city limits may not provide single-use carryout bags to its customers.).

Business establishments are prohibited from providing plastic checkout bags as of January 5, 2011 but instead shall only provide reusable bags as checkout bags to their customers with or without charge, except as indicated in Section (b), below.

Brownsville, Tex., Code of Ordinances ch. 46, art. II, § 46-49 (2010). Brownsville enacted its ordinance to reduce and prevent litter. See Brownsville, Tex., Ordinance No. 2010-911-F (2010).

The Texas Constitution conferred upon cities the power only to enact ordinances that do not conflict with state statute. Tex. Const. art. VI § 5. The Texas Legislature, in turn, made a deliberate decision to deny Texas cities the authority to impose a ban on the sale of containers for waste management. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 361.0961(a)(1). The Fourth Court of Appeals correctly held that Texas Health & Safety Code § 361.0961(a)(1) applies to restrictions on single-use plastic bags, and that despite Laredo's protestations, its ordinance was adopted for a solid waste management purpose. Given that cities throughout Texas have passed similar ordinances to Laredo, and have articulated similar reasons to justify these ordinances, the Texas Supreme Court should grant review in order to encourage the lower courts to strike down these impermissible ordinances.

II. THE TEXAS SUPREME COURT SHOULD GRANT REVIEW BECAUSE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS MUST BE CHECKED TO PRESERVE THE RULE OF LAW.

A. Local Governments Are Defined and Checked by the State.

State law grants authority to local governments. “Political subdivisions of States—counties, cities, or whatever—never were and never have been considered as sovereign entities. Rather, they have been traditionally regarded as subordinate governmental instrumentalities created by the state to assist in the carrying out of state governmental functions.” Bennett v. Brown Cnty. Water Imp. Dist. No. 1, 272 S.W.2d 498, 506-07 (Tex. 1954) (“[A] city is a creature of the State and is defined by the State Constitution and the Legislature. . . . [it] is merely a department of the state, and the state may withhold, grant or withdraw powers and privileges as it sees fit.”). Accordingly, cities are arms of the state authorized to carry out particular responsibilities to secure the blessings of liberty for Texans under their jurisdiction.

Local governments are not unlimited or unchecked. Like all governments, local governments must be confined and monitored. In order to preserve the rule of law, Texas prohibits cities from enacting charters or ordinances that are “inconsistent with the Texas Constitution or Texas statutes.” Tex. Const. art. XI, §5 (“Neither a home-rule city nor a general-law city may adopt an ordinance that is inconsistent with the Texas Constitution or Texas statutes.”); see Travis Cty. Water Dist. v. City of Austin, 64 S.W.3d 25, 29 n.3 (Tex. App. 2000, pet. withdrawn) (citing Lower Colorado River Auth. v. City of San Marcos, 523 S.W.2d 641, 643-44 (Tex. 1975)); Tex. Loc. Gov’t Code §§ 55.002-.079 (“The City, as a home-rule city, draws governing power from this provision of the constitution, and it is necessary to look to the acts of the legislature not for grants of power to such cities but only for limitations on their powers, whether substantive or procedural.”); S. Crushed Concrete, LLC v. City of Houston, 398 S.W.3d 676, 679 (Tex. 2013) (striking down Houston ordinance as preempted by the Texas Clean Air Act).

In this way, Texas law restrains local authority and defines the limits of municipal power. To wit, any city ordinance or charter inconsistent with the Texas Constitution or Texas statutes is unenforceable and must be struck down. See Dallas Merch.’s & Concessionaire’s Ass’n v. City of Dallas, 852 S.W.2d 489, 491 (Tex. 1993) (stating, “an ordinance of a home-rule city that attempts to regulate a subject matter preempted by a state statute is unenforceable to the extent it conflicts with the state statute,” and holding that the City of Dallas’ ordinance was preempted by the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Code); City of Houston v. Bates, 406 S.W.3d 539, 548 (Tex. 2013) (finding that the Texas statute regarding termination pay preempted the City of Houston’s ordinances redefining the term “salary”). Consequently, the courts have a large role to play in checking local governments by striking down unenforceable city ordinances.

B. Courts Must Enforce Objective, Black-Letter Restrictions To Preserve the Rule of Law.

The rule of law is a concept fundamental to our nation. Put simply, the rule of law means that no one—in government or otherwise—can act above the law.

Dialogue on the Rule of Law, AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION DIVISION FOR PUBLIC

EDUCATION (2008), available at

Texas is governed by objective, black-letter rules, not the arbitrary whims of men.

This foundational concept is often traced to the Magna Carta and encapsulates the significance of the document. The Magna Carta established a defined set of rules, freeing the English people from the unpredictable preferences and whims of tyrants. The document transitioned England toward limitations on government by recognizing laws applicable to everyone—including the monarch.

*See, e.g., Dan Jones Magna Carta, BRITISH LIBRARY, <https://www.bl.uk/magna-carta/articles/magna-carta-and-kingship> (last visited Dec. 12, 2016).*

However, the existence of the black-letter law by itself is insufficient. Since laws are written by men acting in governmental capacities, the concept of the rule of law depends on the enforcement of the black-letter law—particularly when the law constrains government. James Madison best articulated this concept in Federalist Paper No. 51:

In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place oblige it to control itself.

THE FEDERALIST NO. 51 (James Madison). For the “rule of law” to prevail, the government must be affirmatively checked. In America, this is accomplished through the separation of powers into three branches of government. When the legislative branch overreaches by enacting an unconstitutional law, the judicial branch has the power to strike down that law. Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137, 178 (1803) ([I]f a law be in opposition to the constitution; if both the law and the constitution apply to a particular case, so that the court must either decide that case conformably to the law, disregarding the constitution; or conformably to the constitution, disregarding the law; the court must determine which of these conflicting rules governs the case. This is the very essence of judicial duty.”).

As established above, the State of Texas has a strong interest in checking local governments when they step outside the bounds of city authority. However, black-letter constraints on local governments are not self-enforcing; they require courts to enforce the law. Thus, this Court should grant review to enforce the black-letter Texas law that prohibits cities like Laredo from restricting the use of plastic bags. In doing so, the Court will preserve the rule of law in Texas.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Foundation respectfully requests the Court grant review, affirm the Fourth Court of Appeals’ Opinion, and thereby preserve the rule of law.

Respectfully submitted,
